A Convenient Solution for Restriction of Movement (ROM) Quarantine

In the presence of threats to public health, such as outbreaks and rapidly spreading viruses, crews may need to abide by a restriction of movement (ROM) requirement. The ROM includes quarantine and isolation time so a crew can wait out a contagious period and determine that they do not carry the illness before moving on to deployment.

MITAGS-MCC has become an expert in ROM events through the COVID-19 pandemic. Our team of maritime and hospitality professionals has created a safe, comfortable environment with a strategic plan in place to ensure successful ROM quarantine events.

AFFORDABLE ROM PACKAGES AVAILABLE

- Overnight accommodations in our 232 guestroom hotel
- Complimentary Wi-Fi, work desk with ergonomic seating

MITAGS-MCC's centralized location on the East Coast is conveniently located near Baltimore/Washington International Thurgood Marshall Airport (BWI), Amtrak's Northeast Corridor Rail Stop and Interstate I-95. Our self-contained, 40-acre campus includes hotel and meal services, as well as ample free parking. Hotel and residence areas have plenty of space for maintaining physical distancing. Also on-site is a physical fitness center, pool and grounds available for exercising, contingent upon ROM rules, protocols and policies. No need to leave the campus until the time of deployment.

MITAGS-MCC has developed a rigorous Campus-wide COVID-19 policy. You can expect secure operations, cleanliness and practices that limit the spread of Coronavirus. Individuals may also choose to participate in some Maritime training at MITAGS during the quarantine period.
